

C288

The success of CARAUSIUS's revolt owed much to his reputation as a military commander, though to bolster his legitimacy he adopted the evocative names 'MARCUS AURELIUS'.

He made skilful use of imagery and propaganda to present himself as joint ruler alongside Diocletian & Maximian; coins show 3 imperial busts with the explanatory legend 'Carausius and his brothers'.

288? 4337

Constantine I (the Great)

Roman Emperor

Born: Naissus (modern Nis, Yugoslavia)

Sm of Constantius I & St. Helena

Named: FLAVIUS VALERIUS CONSTANTINUS

Diocletian & Maximian combined against the ALEMANNI.

Maximian advanced across the Rhine and Diocletian across the Upper Danube.